PORT WASHINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

PORT WASHINGTON, WISCONSIN

FOREWORD

A frame is a very special thing. It can be beautifully wrought in gold or carved out of ordinary wood; or it can be imaginary, an intangible something that shapes a life. Such a frame cannot be described in terms of size, shape, or color. Its dimensions are time, place, and feeling. This book is filled with frames, tangible and intangible. It is filled with a year . . . the last for some, the first for others. It is filled with memories, both happy and sad. A new set of frames lies ahead, but now it is time to look back and reflect upon the past.

Past, present, and future are framed by a place, a friend, a doorway.

A YEAR ENCLOSED IN FRAMES,

A laugh, a song,

A voice, a cheer,

An echo from the past.

Memories are made of sounds, of frames,

Of things which cannot last.

The rhythmic beat of time goes on,

Echoing the past.

A laugh, a song,

A voice, a cheer . . .

A YEAR OF JOY . . .

It begins here--a few more steps and a new school year will become a reality. Class schedules, textbooks, and teachers all provide a pattern for a new set of frames. The school takes on a new air of life, and, as the weeks and months pass, frames seem to reach out and enclose every piece of time.

OF TEARS

. . . OF LIFE

Even a few moments of solitude are claimed by a textbook.

STUDENT BODY . . PAGE 64

The framework of a school is its administration and its teachers who are the foremen of the high school curricular and extra-curricular activities: direction of plays, coach football, basketball, debate, organize student exchanges, advise the annual staff, the French Club, Latin Club, and Ski Club . . . and still find time for a moment of respite in their inner sanctum, the faculty lounge, and a daily checking of their mailboxes.

TEACHING . . . A JOB, AN ART,

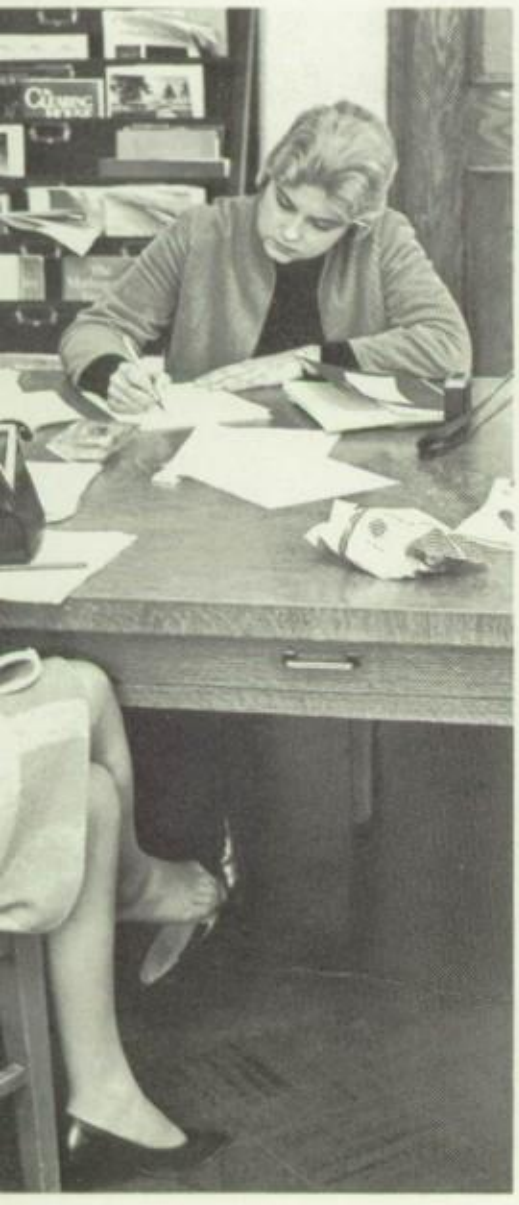
Mr. Breister departs from his stone tablets to demonstrate the modern application of that great Roman invention, the wheel; while students in Mr. Angelos' class gain an insight into the cultural aspects of Greece and Rome.

Mr. Rokus and the industrial arts department re-enact "The Turn of the Screw."

Ist das nicht ein language lab? Ja, das ist ein language lab. Ist das nicht ein Deutsch teacher? Ja, das ist ein Deutsch teacher. Language lab, Deutsch teacher . . .

Individual attention is vitally important in the development of musical skills. Here, Mr. Kimball explains a new technique to students.



With professional tools and skills Miss Nelson and Miss Trewyn prepare for classes.

A school serves as a meeting place for clubs, supplies an office for the annual and a darkroom for the Camera Club, provides a stage for plays and facilities for future Einsteins, becomes an arena for competitive athletics, transforms itself into an enchanted palace for proms, and still remains primarily an institution of learning. Here Dick Muehlburg displays tributes extended to Port students and faculty by the exchange students from Hingham, Massachusetts.

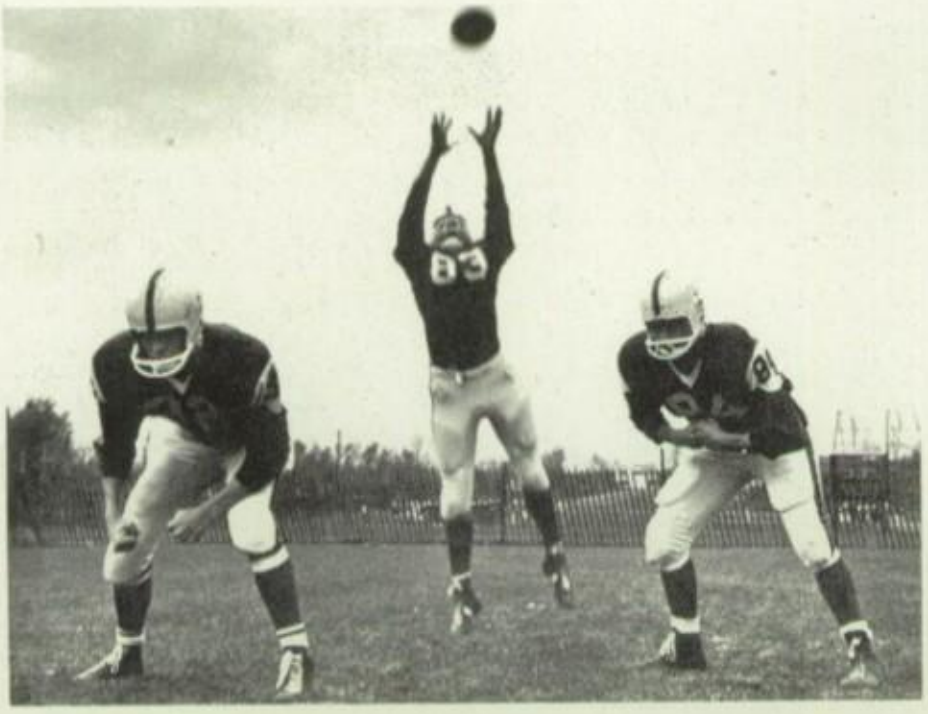
* Non-Conference

No one in the conference survived the season with a spotless record, but Port and Central, tied with one conference loss. Coach Murray and the team longed only for a return match with the second rated Central gridders. Seven members of the Port squad were elected as all-conference representatives. This is a great credit to the team and typical of the team performance throughout the season.

The fleet-footed backfield exhibits some of the technique that made them the most feared threesome in the Conference. Dave Cherny leads Roger Mayer and Ned Gatzke across the gridiron.

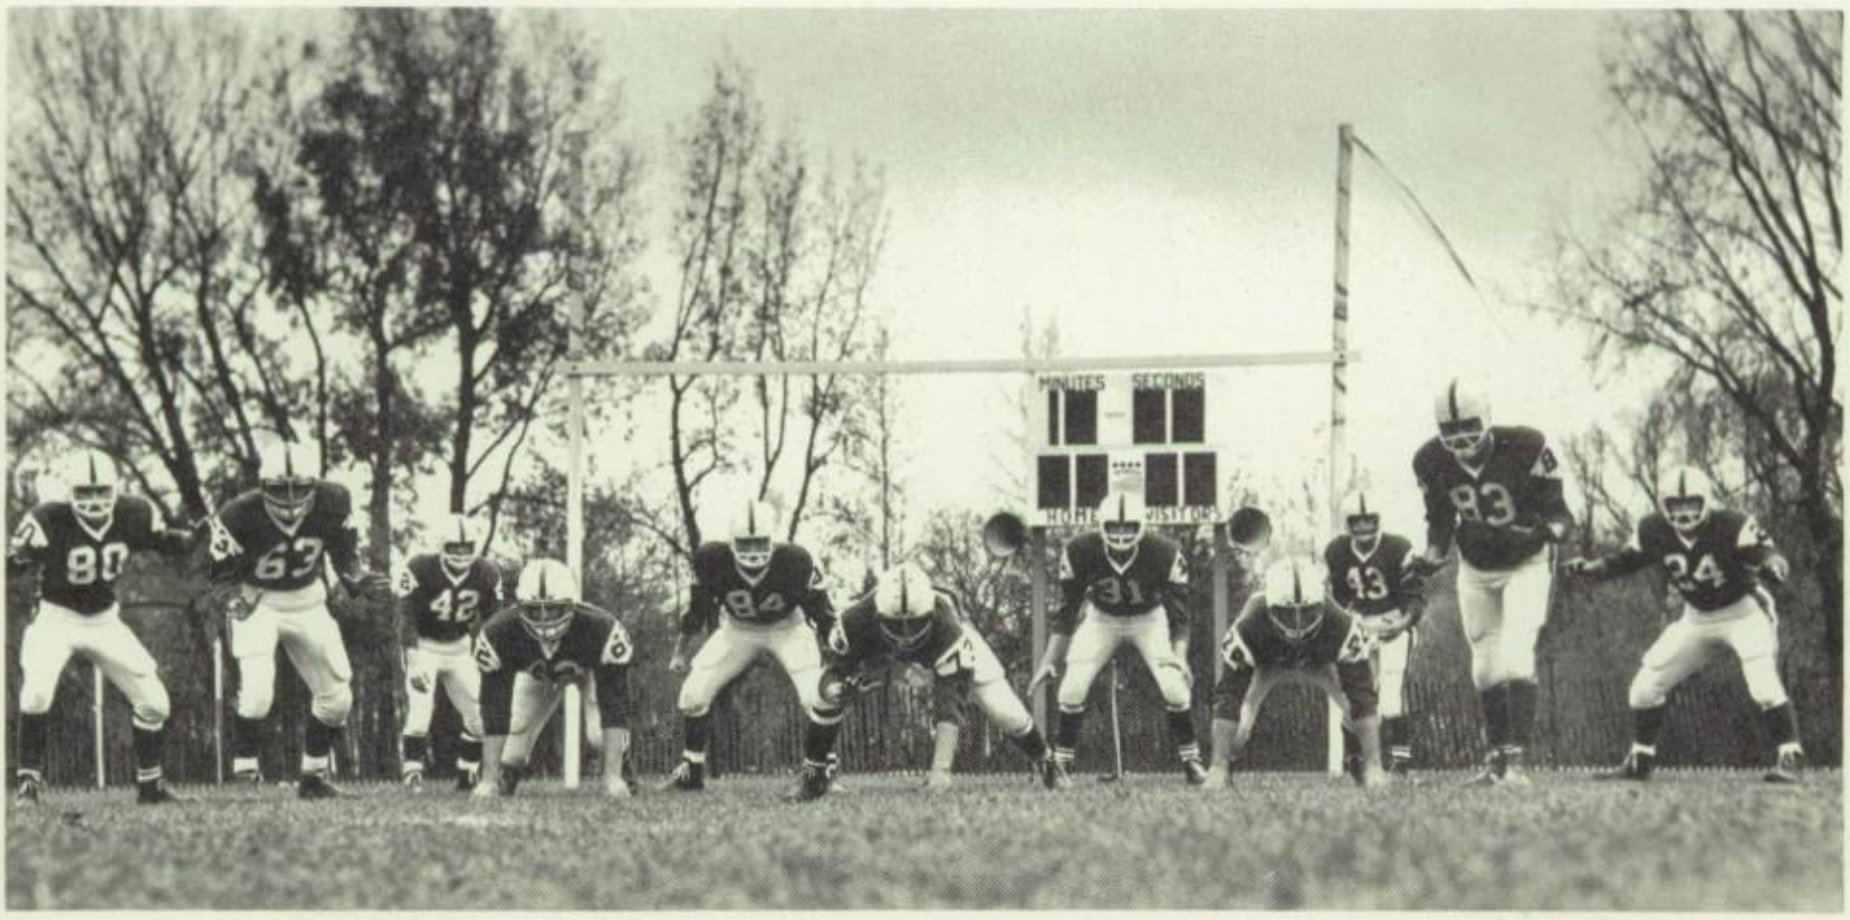
Quarterback Joseph Bichler is flanked by Doug DeGroot and Mike Wilson, the two guards who insured him of enough time to execute his plays.

In a rare moment of carefree frolic, the coaches feign a playful pose for the photographer. They are coaches Urness, Murray, and DeMario.



Mike Dickmann and Phil Puerling prepare to annihilate all opposition as Mark Ewig reaches for the pigskin.

Constant drilling enabled precise execution of Port's plays. These hours of practice molded the Pirates into a well disciplined unit.



The defense was responsible for low opposing scores and multitudinous stretcher cases. The mighty defense readies to charge.

A massive pile up, a cloud of dust, a hearty boot and Port adds another three points to the days rout. In a vindictive return match Port slaughtered the Highlanders on their Homecoming.

Coach DeMario and tackle Dan Nagrocki confer briefly on the sidelines. Victory was sweet, but it cost a little sweat, a little pain, and a little blood.

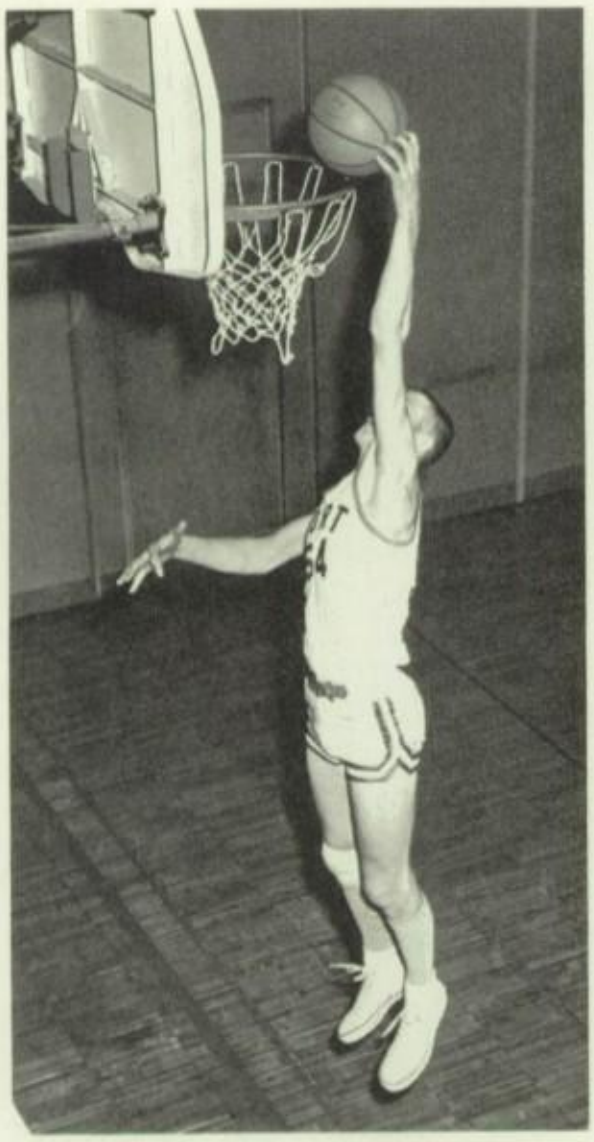
Ten sweaty hands, two clammy, a few words of advice, a hearty shout and clap, some muttering and back in the thick of things.



Willy Retzer scores another bucket in his own simple fashion. His tactics won him Port's scoring crown and the Most Valuable Player award.

Ned Gatzke catches the defense off guard with his adroit dribbling.

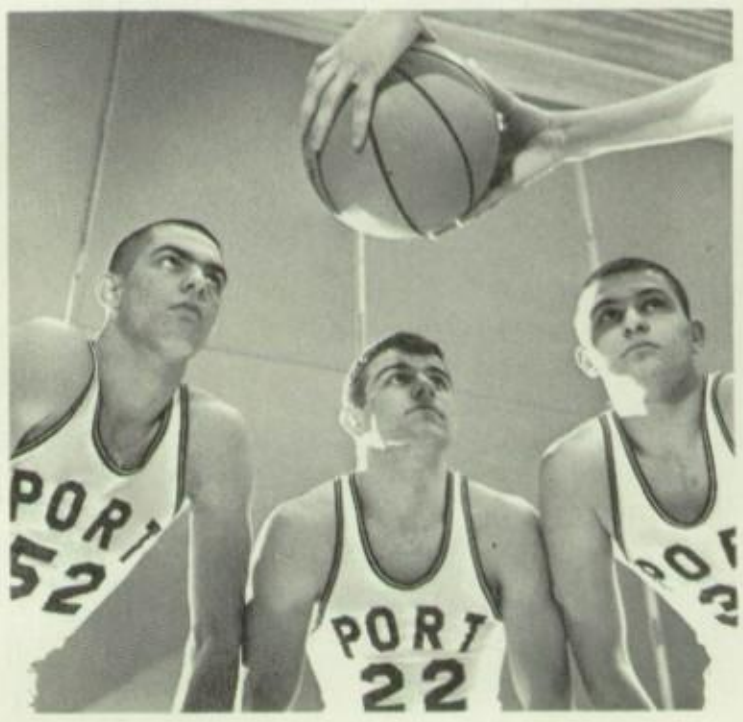
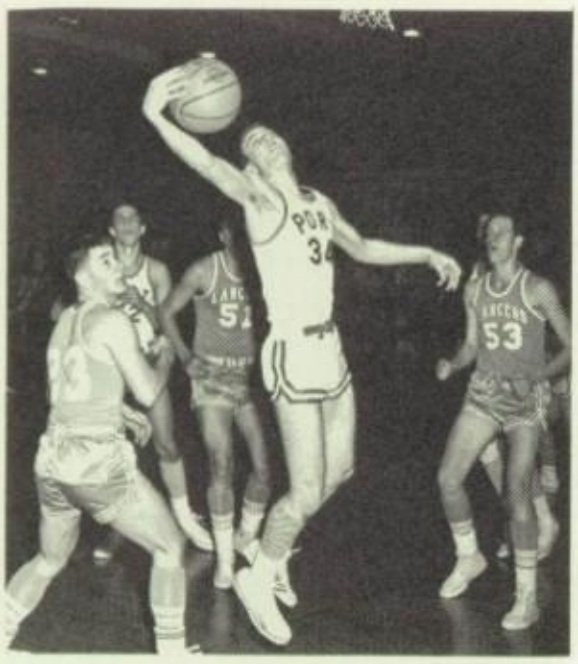
THE LEANING TOWER OF PORT, Mark Ewig drives in for a score.



"Now boys, this is a basketball, B-A-S-K-E-T-B-A-L-L."



Brian Bradley takes down a rebound, although surrounded by Lancers. In the last stages of the game Brookfield Central proved to be too much for the Pirates, but they bought valiantly, leading through the first three quarters.

Phil Puerling does a fancy step and invites a Lancer to join him, while Mark Ewig studies the move.

Important to any team's success is its enthusiasm. Those on the bench applaud and anticipate their moment of glory.

THE BOY FRIEND

The Roaring Twenties roars again, complete with striped bathing suits, flapper dresses, and girls "whose dreams just won't come true without that certain thing called 'The Boy Friend'."

"We're perfect young ladies," with that the curtain rose on the only play at Port High destined for a three night run. Through the work of all, the play was a smashing success.

It was over before it began. Two weeks of touring, eating out, parties, attending classes, and meeting new faces will never be forgotten. Amid tearful good-byes could be heard statements like, "If you ever revisit Hingham, be sure to stop in."

MASSACHUSETTS EXCHANGE

The Rotary cordially invited the exchange students and host students to mix with the city's businessmen at a dinner. It seemed everything, from the size of Lake Michigan's perch to sights seen in Hingham was discussed.

At the farewell assembly, the exchange students were well fortified with boxes of kleenex. Memories of the wonderful experiences shared and strong friendships formed made parting a tearful affair.

AWARDS DAY

TWILIGHT IN VENICE

The King and Queen led the Grand March past the cafes and along the canals of Venice.

"Tonight," May 22, 1965, brings the height of achievement to the Junior Class of 1965. The Venetian Twilight captured an atmosphere of enchantment.

The Venetian Royalty: Queen Randa Fromm and King George Brouillette, Dorothy Duff escorted by Gary Croatt, Laurie King escorted by Gerald Pieffer, Jane Steffan escorted by Paul Hyde, and Stacey Mueller escorted by Frank Wallisch.

The Spectators anxiously watched for familiar faces in the maze of pastel formals, flowers, and dark suits.

The lights dimmed and twilight fell over Venice as King George Brouillette and Queen Randa Fromm began their reign dancing to "Tonight."

COMMENCEMENT 1965

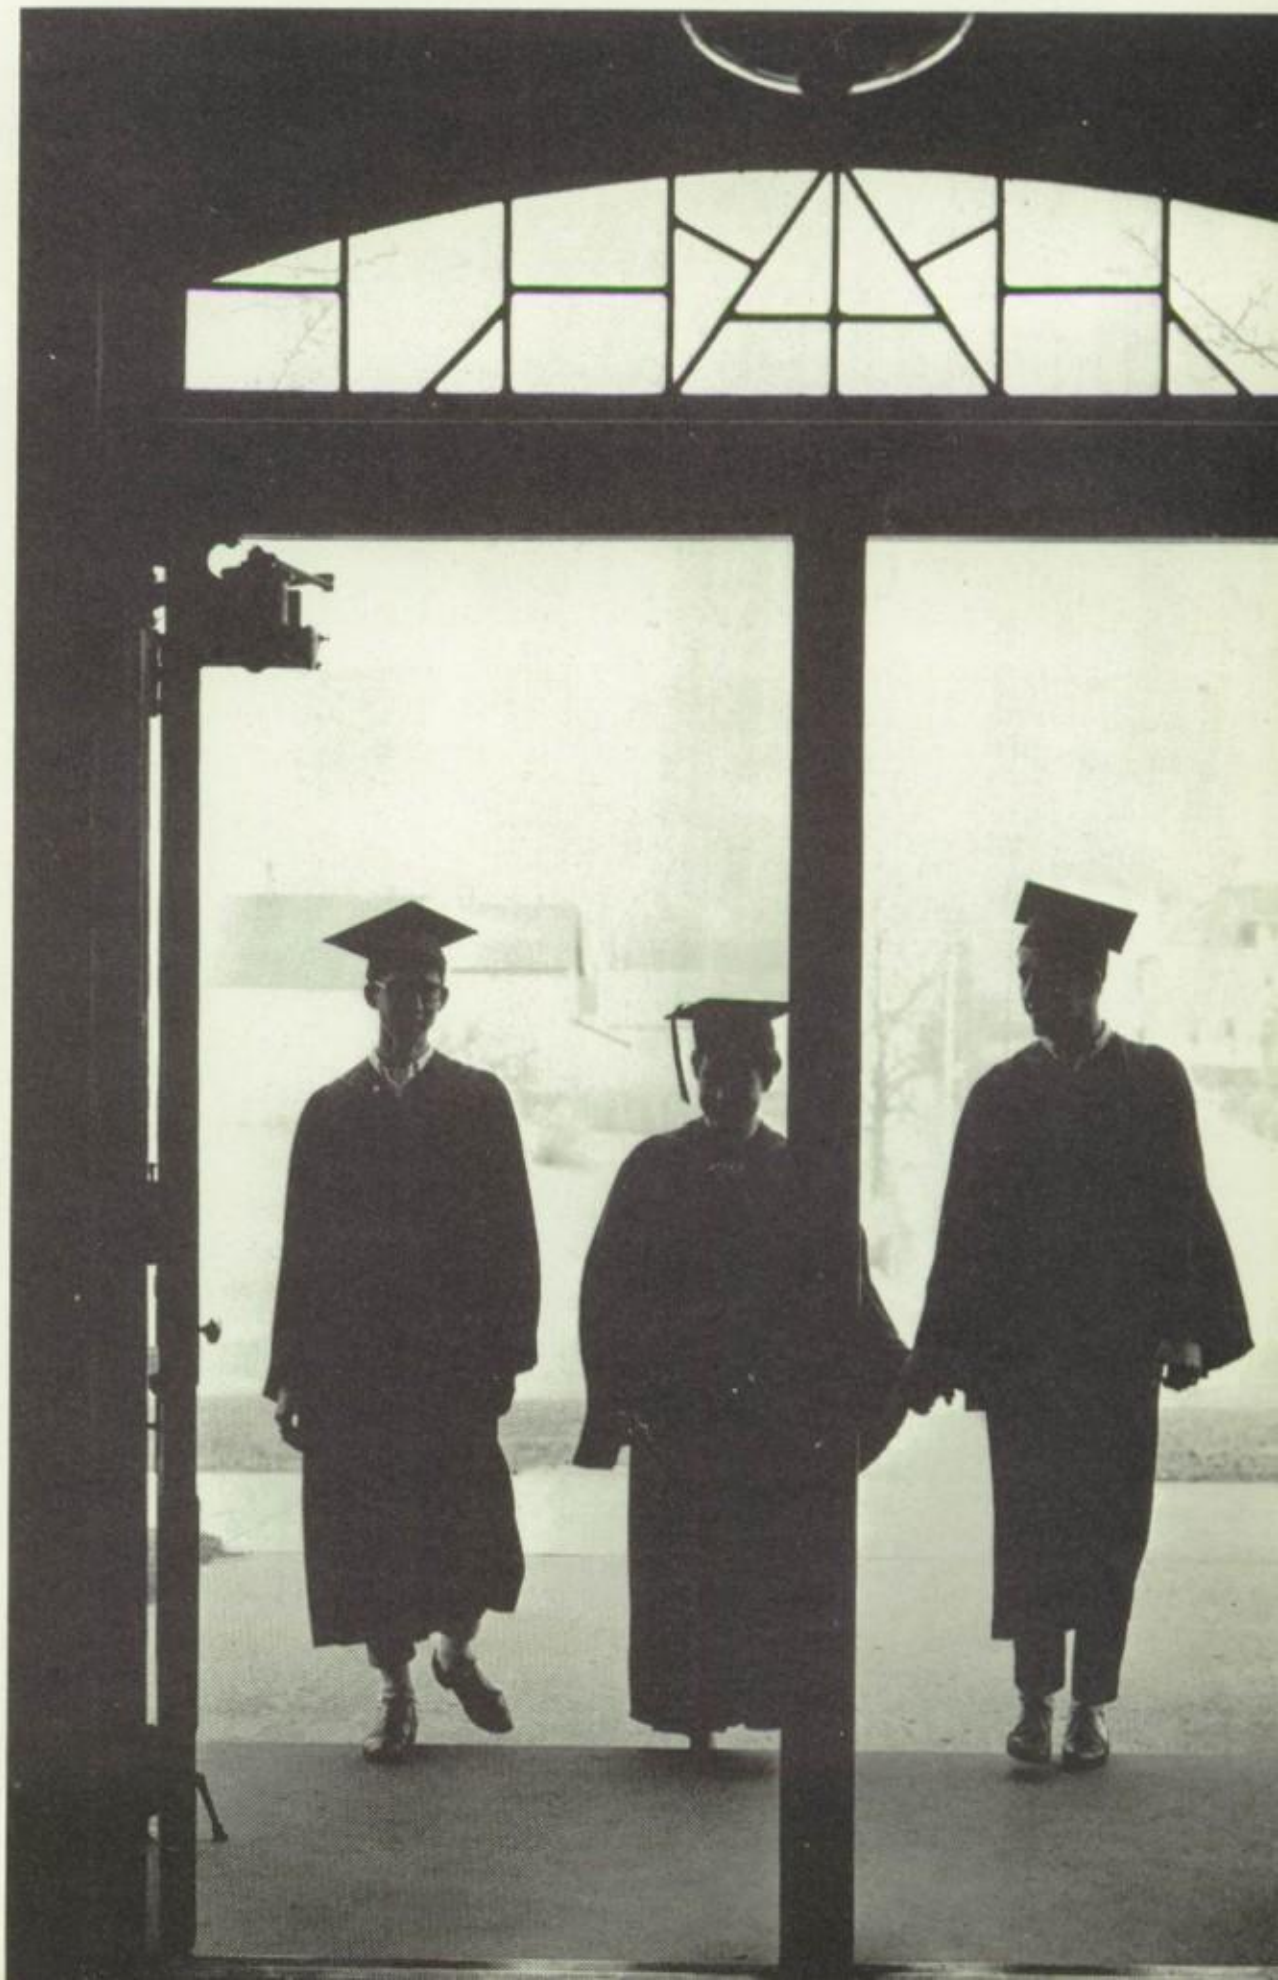
On June 3, 1965, the doors of Port High's gym framed the members of its 1965 Graduating Class as they marched with measured steps from one world to another.

During that evening they recalled the past, framing it with the pleasure of memory. They remembered musicals, field trips, term papers . . . endlessly brief ordinary school days.

And they thought, a little impatiently, of the future, framing it with the pleasure of anticipation. They thought of college, jobs, marriage . . . a lifetime.



A few moments and the future will be now.

COMMENCEMENT

1965

Principal John Zei extends warm congratulations to Romayne Ehlers.

Scholarship winners gaze at their awards as their college education becomes a reality.

Frames have individuality and universality. Thus we fittingly chose to enclose our subjects: students, faculty members, and their combined activities.

Now, we would like to extend a sincere thank you to those who devoted their time and energy to this publication. Special acknowledgement is extended to:
Mr. and Mrs. Gene Picard of Colonial Studio--official photographers, Mr. Gene Picard--theme originator for the annual, Mr. Vern Arendt--occasional substitute for the Picards, Dean Mueller--designer of the EPITOME cover, and Mrs. Michael Price and Miss Lynn Alberts--advisors to the EPITOME.

We paused to reflect momentarially; now, let us pass through other frames.
